No small sensation was excited in the barroom of the City Hotel, on Tuesday evening.

No small sensation was excited in the bar-room of the City Hotel, on Tuesday evening, by the appearance of Joseph L. Hays among the guests, and the arrest of one of the par-ty, who was calmly smoking his segar and assuaging his thirst with a glass of hot whis-ley nurch. Various articles of wearing as key punch. Various articles of wearing ap-parel having mysteriously disappeared from time to time from the adjoining room where the gentlemen were in the labit of depositing their closks and over-coats during dinner their clocks and over-coats during dinner time, Mr. Jennings, the landlord, determin-ed to station one of his servants behind a time, Sir. station one of his servants behind a screen in the room, to endeavour to discover the depred etor. The accused had been observed frequently to rise from the table a few minutes earlier than the others and withdraw, which excited such a suspicion that Mr. Jennings, gave the domestic specific instructions to watch him closely. He made a very short meal on the afternoon above named, retired to the adjoining room, deliberately took up a to the adjoining room and the afternoom above named, retired to the adjoining room, deliberately took up a to the adjoining room to the afternoom above named to the adjoining room, deliberately took up a to the adjoining room to the adj meal on the atternoon above named, reured to the adjoining room, deliberately took up a handsome cloak, put it on, and marched off in a hurry.
